A group of rehab professionals in the north of the country, including Dominicans, Japanese peace corps volunteers (JICA) and my missionary friends, Nick and Laurie, organized the first rehabilitation conference for the Dominican Republic that was held in February. Over 200 people gathered together to listen to presentations and network together. A good number of my students participated and professors from both universities had a chance to sit and talk with the president of the World Congress of Physical Therapy. Here are a few of the PT professors from Santo Domingo with Marilyn Moffat, the keynote speaker.

The eastern region of the country had a long parade and Eucharist together in January in celebration of 116 years of worshipping God as members of the Anglican Communion. The parade went through San Pedro, with Las Chicas Nices along with a few other women, on the back of a long flatbed truck singing along. Folks lined the streets to enjoy the event, some sitting at their domino tables and others clapping and joining in the celebrative mood. These women paused in their afternoon to join in the joyful music for the Lord.

Please pray for my evolving role as a professor at the university in the capital and for balancing my ministry roles here in Santa Fe.

In Christ,
Cathy
